Three Mile Creek Shoreline Work

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, CO – The Glenwood Springs Parks and Recreation Department will begin restoration work along the Roaring Fork River at the confluence of Three Mile Creek on September 24, 2018. This work will involve the addition of boulders to stabilize the shoreline in this area and to protect against future erosion.

The Atkinson Trail is expected to remain open during this work, which will last approximately two weeks. Work crews will be hauling rocks to the shoreline by way of the Atkinson Trail with flaggers in front of and behind the equipment. The City asks pedestrians and bicyclists to use caution around flaggers and equipment on the trail.
